Local towns are candidates for radioactive waste dump

A large section of the SAD #44 district has been labeled as a potential site for a low-level nuclear waste dump.

The Maine Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority (MLLRWA) last week released a list of 12 widely scattered "candidate regions" that met the preliminary criteria for such a facility. Parts of the towns of Bethel, Greenwood, Woodstock, West Paris and Milton Township are included in one of the regions identified by the waste authority (see map).

The disposal site eventually selected will be used to store low-level radioactive material that has been used in the handling and use of radioactive substances. Such materials include decommissioned power plant parts, medical vials, biological wastes, clothing, tools, dried sludges and other items.

More than 40 Maine businesses and institutions produce LLRW, but the bulk, both in terms of volume and degree of radioactivity, is produced by two facilities: the Maine Yankee nuclear power plant in Wiscasset and the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard in Kittery.

Maine produces approximately two boxcar loads of LLRW a year. The waste is currently being shipped to existing facilities in South Carolina, Nevada and Washington, but by January 1993 these facilities will no longer be required to accept out-of-state waste. And all three states have said they do not intend to take Maine waste after that date.

Federal law also requires that by 1996 all states either have their own LLRW disposal facility or have a contract with another state to accept their waste.

Maine is in the process of trying to find another state to accept its waste. But since there is no certainty the search will be successful, the MLLRWA is also in the process of identifying potential in-state sites.

The 12 candidate regions announced last week represent the first cut in that selection process.

Wiscasset, the site of the Maine Yankee power plant, was not included in the preliminary regions identified last week. But Central Maine Power Company, which owns Maine Yankee, has volunteered to have the site serve as the states LLRW disposal facility and the MLLRWA is studying that option.

The 12 regions identified last week range in size from 100 to 400 square miles. They were selected by a computer program that took into account a variety of geological, environmental and land-use data.

The next step in the selection process will involve identifying 10 smaller

Area unemployment highest in state: no relief in sight

The unemployment rate in the Rumford and Norway/South Paris labor markets (which include the towns of SAD #44) is the highest in the state, according to figures recently released by the Maine Department of Labor.

The Norway/South Paris labor market (which includes West Paris, Woodstock and Greenwood) and the Rumford labor market (which included the remaining SAD #44 towns) each showed an identical September unemployment rate of 7.2 percent—the highest such rates in the state.

The local rates are 76 percent higher than the average state rate of 4.1 percent for September. And they are up by about a third from the September 1989 rates for the two local areas.

Nationally, unemployment stood at 5.5 percent in September, up 4 percent from a year earlier.

Gerard Dennison, a senior economic analyst for the Department of Labor, attributed the sharp increase in local unemployment to a number of factors, the most significant being a depressed logging industry.

A surplus of logs, and weak demand from the slumping construction industry, have lowered the prices loggers receive at the mill, he said, and led to an increase in layoffs.

Dennison said that in addition to the weak logging and construction industries, many smaller manufacturing and retail businesses were also scaling down their operations, or closing them down entirely.

"There's been a lot of small layoffs," he said, pointing, for example, to the closing of businesses like GAMM II and L. E. Davis Lumber Company.

Dennison held out little hope for any near-term turnaround in the Appeals board hears Ford's case against apartment project

"I have no qualms at all about playing David to someone else's Goliath," Bethel Park Apartments' abuttor Tom Ford told the Bethel Board of Appeals Thursday, as he prepared to make his case against the proposed low-income housing project.

Thursday's meeting, held in the Teletar High School lecture hall, lasted 90 minutes, and the appeals board now has until Dec. 6 to rule on Ford's appeal.

The appeals board was represented by members Kenneth Rammage, acting chairman, Robert Crane and Shirley Gilbert. Also present were representatives of the developer, Gleichman & Company, the Bethel Planning Board, and approximately two dozen other interested residents.

The developer and planning board had their attorneys present. Ford did not. The first half (24 units) of the Bethel Park Apartment project was approved by the planning board on Oct. 26, following a lengthy review process. Shortly thereafter Ford filed an appeal, citing a number of reasons why he believed the appeals board was obliged to overturn the approval.

In his letter of appeal, Ford challenged both the procedures employed by the board and its evaluation of the impact of the project on wetlands, the town's historic district, services and property values (the full text of Ford's letter of appeal can be found in the Nov. 7 issue of The Citizen).

However, in his presentation Thursday, Ford declined to challenge the legality of any specific planning board action, relying instead on a map intended to show the extent of vegetation to be stripped for the project, and on a five-page "loose collection of notes" that he prepared to assist him in discussing the matter.

The appeals board accepted both documents for review, but when members pressed Ford for specific legal grounds on which to overturn the approval, he was generally unable to provide any.

By contrast, Planning Board Chairman Dennis Doyon read a 2½-page letter.

Sunday River X-Country Ski Center Opens

Sunday, Nov. 25, is opening day at Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center.

Everyone is invited to ski or hike the trails. This year there are two new additions: the Wanigan Trail, an alternate route to the Artists' Covered Bridge, and a new section on Two Sled around Dug Hill Pond. Skiers this year will find many of their favorite trails wider and with gentler curves.

On opening day, hot cider will be available, ski movies will be shown, and season's passes will be on sale.

Bethel Planning Board members ask to be paid

By WENDY D. HANSCOM

The Bethel Planning Board, has proposed to the town's selectmen that its members be paid $300 per year.

At last week's planning board meeting, Chairman Dennis Doyon contended: "at some point voluntary boards will become obsolete."

Board members decided to make the stipend, if granted, optional, citing the reason for compensation as expenses that some members may have for babysitters, travel, and the large commitment of time members make. Doyon estimated the number of

Thanksgiving reflections

The sun is just rising on the morning of another day. What can I wish that this day may bring me?
A few friends who understand me, and yet remain my friends...
A sight of the eternal hills and of something beautiful made by man.
A sense of humor and a good laugh.
A few moments of quiet leisure.
The patience to wait for these things and the wisdom to know them when they come.
With the coming of Thanksgiving it is time again to "Talk Turkey" and to think of America. Someone once wrote, "All riches are desirable and we are justified in seeking them all, but the riches of mind and soul give the greatest happiness and add the most to the value of life."
So count your blessings during this holiday season and you will find much to be thankful for.

TAXPAYERS ARE HAD AGAIN

The taxpayers are had again. We, the taxpayers, allow many problems to arise by not taking an active interest in our local affairs. Granted we have selectmen and a town manager who are representing us and probably the vital interests of the town. However, if they are misled in to a "deal" that will be inappropriate for the town's best interest, we must start to look out for ourselves.

The need for affordable housing in Bethel is questionable in many of our minds, but to put it into the historical section of town in a swamp is beyond comprehension. Let the developer work on the outskirts of town and put in his own sewage plant rather than compound our problems with an already very fragile treatment plant. The developer in this case erects a "nightmare for taxpayers," walks away with federal money, and the town is left with the headache of more children in school, disrupted wetlands, increased required town services, and monumental problems with our sewer system. There are taxpayers in town now waiting to book into the sewer and out of town taxpayers who were told that they would be able to dump their septic pumpings into the treatment system as it was gradually updated—this will not happen with the demands of the housing project.

The Nov. 15 Appeals Board meeting was well organized, but the "die was cast." Tom Ford's appeal had the sympathy of many of us, but it was too little too late.

It is too bad that our "Town Fathers" got suckered into the Block Grant situation; it is going to end up costing the taxpayers a lot of money in the long run. The real estate people don't care and the developers don't care, so let's get off our duffs, taxpayers, and start getting a little control of our affairs before we end up living in one of these damn projects.

TELSTAR OUTWARD BOUND AUCTION NEEDS ITEMS

To the Editor:
Telstar Regional High School, operates a unique program. All students at Telstar are invited to participate in a week long Outward Bound expedition in the spring of their sophomore year. Telstar's unique program was the first of its kind in the nation where a school district sends an entire class on an Outward Bound course.

This year will be the fourth year that, pending funding, the program will run. Students, high school faculty members, and staff from the L.L. Bean Outward Bound Center in Newry spend their week in groups of about 12, hiking on snowshoes, using map and compass skills, and learning winter camping skills. Each group's course is a difficult bushwhack through woods covering six to 10 miles and including a challenging summit climb.

However, this event is much more than a physical experience. Program objectives include: understanding group dynamics, decision making, conflict resolution, leadership, developing communication and listening skills, problem solving, an understanding of how health relates to a productive lifestyle, and the negative effects of poor fitness and nutrition, and alcohol and other drug abuse. Students acquire skills and concepts experientially—team building, improved self-confidence and self-esteem—which transfer to the students' junior and senior years at Telstar and on to life after high school. Although this program greatly benefits the students who participate, funding is a problem. This year, the Outward Bound Fund-raising Committee at Telstar is working on a benefit auction to raise money. The auction is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 8, at 10 a.m. at Telstar. We need your help. We would appreciate any items, new or secondhand, in good condition, that could be sold at our auction. We need any special talents or services you could offer, such as, gift certificates to your business, or a donation of your time to cook a special meal, chop firewood, etc. Crafts or gift certificates for crafts would also help very much. If you can make a contribution of any kind, please contact Steve Keane or Heather Carson at Telstar High School at 824-2136 and watch for an auction update before Dec. 8.

LAND TRUSTS ALSO EXCLUDED

To the Editor:
I share the disappointment Leon Favreau expressed in feeling excluded from the Wilderness Society forest conference held in Bethel last weekend. None of the more than 70 land trusts in the state were invited, although two of our board members obtained permission to attend. As Mr. Favreau points out in his letter to the editor of Nov. 14, private land trusts are a viable means of keeping lands growing trees, often providing tax benefits to landowners and natural beauty for future generations. The Mahosuc Land Trust is currently working with several landowners who are granting conservation easements which will allow carefully monitored timber harvesting while protecting the land from future development. Maine's land trusts are an immediately available means of helping the state conserve its natural wealth.

SHE SPOKE AS CONSULTANT

To the Editor:
It was brought to my attention by recent newspaper articles that my appearance at the Oct. 12 meeting of the Bethel Planning Board caused some members of the public to be upset.

To clear up matters, I must state that when I resigned as planning assistant I agreed to work as a consultant on the Bethel Park Apartments and the Bethel Shopping Center site plan applications. Having spoken with planning board members and the new planning assistant prior to the Oct. 12 meeting, I joined the meeting as a consultant, not as a member of the general public. It was as a consultant, not as a member of the public that I spoke.

As a member of the public, I would have had no interest in the Bethel Park Apartments site plan application, because I neither reside nor own property in Bethel. While as an environmentalist I might have had concerns about the disturbance of wetlands, as a consultant I was concerned only with issues related to the site plan ordinance.

I'm sorry that my position as a consultant was not clear, but I believe it can be found in my letter of resignation, which is available from the town manager or any planning board member, all of whom received a copy.

POLICY COMMITTEE REPLIES

To the Editor:
(Note: The following letter from the policy committee of the SAD #44 Board of Directors is in response to a letter to the board, and subsequent Citizen [Oct. 24] editorial, by former Citizen editor Christy C. Cross.)

The AD #44 Policy Committee, at its October 29, 1990 Committee meeting, reviewed your requests dated October 22, 1990. The Committee appreciates the time frames (constraints) that your newspaper deadlines place upon you after the conclusion of our School Board meetings. It is believed that the length of time between the agenda being presented and the Monday Board meeting does allow you ample opportunity to research each agenda item. The Committee does not believe that an introduction of each item is a time efficient means of presenting each agenda item. School Board members or the Superintendent are available to discuss all non-confidential agenda items before, or after, each Board meeting.

The Committee believes that each motion does have ample time for discussion before each official Board vote. Often this discussion is prior to a formal motion if it is believed that in order for the motion to be accurate a discussion is needed. The present and past Board chairs have allowed a public discussion during citizen comments as well as requested comments during Board discussion of the agenda item.

The Committee is not quite sure of your fourth request. The official record following a stated motion and discussion on each item is the Board's statement on that issue.

The Committee wishes to state again, the full Board wishes the media to be given every opportunity to get the information they need to accurately report School Board business. Board members and the School Administrator appreciate the efforts of our local media in reporting all educational functions.

CHRISTMAS FOR CHILDREN

To the Editor:
The Bethel Rotary Club is beginning its third annual Christmas for Children drive. Over the past two years, and thanks to the generosity of residents, over $8,000 has been received and spent on needy children in the area.

FROM THE Bethel Town Office

Rodney Lynch
Town Manager

This week's column will be devoted to the importance of wetlands in reviewing development proposals, the quality of the treated water coming out of the sewage plant and the contribution of the sewage plant operators towards the plant upgrade work.

Recently the Bethel Planning Board completed an extensive and exhaustive review of the Bethel Park Apartments project (even the developers admitted that it was the most exhaustive scrutiny that any of their projects have ever undergone). During this process the wetlands issue was raised and the DEP and Corps of Engineers became involved because of their jurisdiction over wetlands areas.

Perhaps the most important lesson being that whenever a development proposal comes before the planning board for review and there is any hint whatsoever that it may be either in or adjacent to a wetlands area, the wetlands issue should be dealt with first before proceeding further into the review process. This could save the Last year alone over 100 boys and girls benefited from this program. The focus of Christmas for Children is to purchase new toys for those families unable to do so on their own. These funds come entirely from donations.

Our goal this year is $5,000. Given the present economy, there is little doubt that our goal will be hard to reach. Letters of request this year far outnumber the amount received at this time last year. Unfortunately, contributions have also been slow.

If you are capable of doing so, this year would be a perfect opportunity to begin contributing to this worthwhile cause. Donations of any size would be greatly appreciated. Contributions should be mailed to Christmas for Children, c/o Dave Murphy, RFD #1, Box 176, Bethel, Me., 04217. Your support in this effort would be greatly appreciated by local children on Christmas morning.

HIKER SAYS 'THANKS'

To the Editor:
I am writing to you to express my deep gratitude and appreciation to three members of the Bethel Ambulance and Rescue Service who provided medical care and helped to carry me out of the White Mountains after a hiking accident on Aug. 19, 1990.

I tripped and broke my leg very badly while backpacking. Arlene Greenleaf, who was the emergency service person in charge, and Heidi Akers provided kind, competent and cheerful medical attention and careful monitoring that was enormously reassuring and helped me to be able to cope with a four-hour long ride in a stretcher down the mountain.

Mike Bennett, who was first on the scene, was simply incredible. For four hours, without a break, and down a wet and rocky trail, he carried the stretcher at my head helping to keep it horizontal in order to ease my pain. He was devoted and undaunted and the most impressive 19-year old I have had the pleasure to meet.

Although it was a difficult, painful and frightening experience, I was indeed fortunate to have the help of wonderful and generous people such as Arlene, Heidi and Mike, who without a doubt helped to keep a bad accident from becoming more serious. They are a tribute to your community.

THANKS, TEACHERS

To the teachers of SAD #44:
The education of our youth is a serious matter that requires a great deal of time, patience and planning. A lot of your work must be accomplished after school is out for the day or while you are home for the evening. In order to be ready for classes on Monday morning, you must spend a portion of your Sunday grading papers or preparing lesson plans. Many of you are involved in athletics or other extra curricular programs. Many of you are highly respected by your students because you make time to listen when they seek your advice on a personal problem. You have that special way of showing them you honestly care about them and their future. Many of you take the extra steps to help students who may be struggling in a certain subject and your only reward, upon success, is a special warm feeling inside because you know you helped make a difference in a young life.

We, the members of American Legion Post #81 would like you to know that your efforts have been noticed and we sincerely appreciate the excellent job you are doing. We commend and salute you for going that extra mile for the youth of our community.

NEWRY WITHDRAWAL

To the Editor:
Newry's withdrawal committee (from SAD #44) has been meeting on a regular basis for over a month now. We have chosen a consultant, discussed many different education options, and will soon attempt to put some preliminary dollar figures on these options.

At times the brainstorming process brings out ideas that if implemented could provide very substantial permanent education benefits for our students. Our primary goal is to create a first rate schooling system that will provide an exciting atmosphere for the diverse needs of children. If this also results in a tax savings for our community so much the better. We believe that any citizen, regardless of the town he or she represents, would feel the responsibility to secure the best educational opportunities for their town.

As the study goes on, every attempt will be made to reduce the adverse financial impacts that Newry's withdrawal would have on the district's remaining towns. The state requires that this must be addressed. It is very interesting to explore the possibilities open to us. The committee wants and needs any ideas or opinions that may help it do the best job possible. We urge anyone wishing to be heard on this subject to come to our meetings and get involved. Call the Newry town office for meeting times.

DALE THURSTON'S HOME

To the Editor:
I am writing to correct an error in your Nov. 14th edition. While "Dave" Thurston is a great guy and a spiffy 3rd cousin, the house pictured off its foundation was lived in by Dale Thurston and his family for over 40 years.

The error is understandable for anyone who's lived in Bethel for less than 5 years. New blood is necessary for any town to survive and I thank you for a much needed chuckle this week.

Fran Thurston Doucette

Town and developer a great deal of time and money. The new reality is that developers must take into consideration state and federal wetlands laws when planning their projects. Last June the Town substantially completed the sewage plant upgrade work and started pushing sewage through the new pumps, clarifiers and chlorine contact tanks. According to Plant Operator Robert Gunderson, it's the cleanest and best looking treated wastewater he has ever seen at the plant. In addition both he and Sewage Plant Consultant John Fancie are pleased with the peripheral feed clarifiers. Presently we are working to resolve one remaining problem before we completely close out the project. This has to do with the existing aeration tank.

Before leaving the issue of the sewage plant upgrade work, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize plant operators Robert Gunderson and Scott Sumner for acting as the Town's on-site day-to-day watch dogs over the plant reconstruction work. As a result of some of the things they found and the suggestions that they made, I feel that we wound up with a better product. Thanks Rob-and Scot for a job well done. In closing, on behalf of the Bethel Board of Selectmen and Town employees, I would like to wish the citizens of Bethel a happy and pleasant Thanksgiving.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House.

In 1966 Ruth Crosby, a retired English professor at the University of Maine, published her memorable book "I Was A Summer Boarder."

Here is recorded the delightful story of her coming to Bethel each year in the early years of this century to Miss Locke's (now Benton Swan's farm on the Sunday River Road), and her adventures as a summer boarder picnicking, going to the post office or learning various things from the other guests.

Miss Crosby was born in Arlington, Mass. and received her A.B. degree from Mount Holyoke and her advanced degrees (A.M., Ph. D) from Radcliffe. She taught at the University of Maine thirty years, before retiring in 1962 as Professor Emerita of English. A specialist in medieval literature, she wrote articles and reviews for scholarly journals, but she is most likely to be best remembered for her boarder book.

Following the closing of Miss Locke's boarding house in 1913, the Crosby family acquired a farm (known as the Red House, now owned by her nephew and wife Donald and Katherine Bennett) across from Sunday River Inn. Here Ruth Crosby summered for many years until her death in the 1980s. It was here that she discovered the old leather trunk which contained much family data, which was later transformed into her second book "From An Old Leather Trunk," published in 1974.

For years these books were a popular sales item in the gift shop operated by the Bethel Historical Society. Believed to be out of print, additional copies have surfaced that were once in the publisher's hands. These are expected to be shipped to Bethel soon and copies of these cherished books will be again available in limited numbers. Those interested in acquiring one of Ruth's books should keep an eye on this column for the official announcement of their availability.

APPEAL

ter attempting to refute, point by point, the specific charges raised in Ford's letter of appeal.

Doyon argued that by law the planning board's review was limited to the considerations spelled out in the town's ordinances, primarily the Site Plan Review Ordinance.

For example, the planning board currently has no authority to evaluate impact on wetlands, he said, although the board is drafting language for amending the Site Plan Review Ordinance to include such criteria.

Gleichman & Company has filed an application with the Army Corps of Engineers regarding the wetlands to be affected by the first phase of the project, Doyon said. Because of the limited amount of wetlands involved, the filing of that application is all that is required for the first phase project to proceed—no formal approval from the Corps is required.

On other issues raised by Ford, Doyon contended either that, as with the wetlands issue, the planning board had no authority to take them into consideration, or that the board's evaluation of the situation differed from Ford's.

For example, in his collection of notes for the meeting, Ford raised the prospect of two dozen "at risk" teenagers gathering in the center of town, creating an "unsettling environment" for other residents, and vandalizing the Crescent Park School and other properties abutting the project.

He went on to suggest that the project plan be required to include "an eight-foot chain-link fence along each of the abutting property lines to help prevent children from straying onto the backland of various abutters."

Doyon, however, argued that the number of children would be far less and they would be of varying ages.

And while Ford contended "there could be a serious impact on the SAD #44 school district," Doyon said earlier that SAD #44 Superintendent of Schools Dewaine Craig had told the planning board that the project would not have a significant impact on the system.

The appeals board must now schedule a public meeting, at which time members will vote on Ford's appeal. As of yesterday, Nov. 13, no date for the meeting had been set.

If the appeal is rejected and the project's approval upheld, this will be the last step in the town's review of the first phase of the project. However, if and when the developer decides to go ahead with the second 24-unit phase of the project, it will be necessary to go through the entire approval process again.

Gleichman & Company development director Steve Turgin said he expects over the winter to receive the necessary permits for the project from the Department of Environmental Protection, and to complete financing from the Farmers' Home Administration.

If all goes smoothly, he said, construction work would begin in the spring and the project would be ready for occupancy by next winter.

JUST THE FACTS—Ken Ramage, lower photo, serving as chairman of the Bethel Board of Appeals during last week's hearing on the Bethel Park Apartments approval, presses appellant Tom Ford for specific reasons why the planning board's approval of the project should be overturned. Bob Crane, left, and Shirley Gilbert also represented the appeals board at the hearing, which was held in the Telstar High School lecture hall. CASTING A COLD EYE, upper photo, on the proceedings was developer Pam Gleichman, shown here flanked by attorney Michael Healy and Gleichman & Company development director Steve Turgin.

board meetings per year at roughly 30.

The board will draft a letter to selectmen suggesting that $2,700 be appropriate to compensate board members. Members who attend 80 percent of the meetings, missing no more than five meetings, would be eligible for the optional stipend.

The board was established with seven regular members and two alternates.

In other business last week, the board advised Sue O'Donnell that the conversion of storage space in the apartment over her restaurant, Mother's, would not be a change of use.

Richard Plachy asked the board to give his clients Stuart Weman and Lynn MacFarlane of Jersey City, N.J., an advisory opinion on whether they could get a variance on the town's subdivision lot size ordinance.

The proposed subdivision is located off Sunset Road. The owners wanted to develop five lots. According to flood plain maps some of the land is in the 10-year flood plain.

"If they want to apply (for a variance) they certainly can," said Don Feeney, "but I think there's an opportunity for the lots to conform." The board consensus was that two lots could be placed on the land, but not the proposed five.

Plachy commented that this would not be in his clients' best financial interest, and that the land is currently in litigation.

Chairman Doyon replied, "I don't think it's our role to say whether it's cost effective or not." Doyon added that in his time with the board a variance on subdivision lot sizes has never been granted.

The board approved a site plan ordinance for Ed and Mary Jo Kennett. The Kennetts want to renovate the old Ripley and Fletcher building on the corner of Vernon and Main streets.

The Kennetts received a conditional approval. They must provide a letter of financial capability and solid-waste disposal plans.

Steve Turgeon appeared before the board on behalf of Gleichman & Company of Portland. Gleichman's Bethel Park Apartments Complex needs letters of financial capability before the permit can be issued.

Turgeon said a letter from Oxford Bank would be faxed to the board.

Forest Stewardship Assistance Program

A new program designed to place 500,000 acres of private, nonindustrial forest land under professional management within the next five years was announced recently by John Cashwell, director of the Department of Conservation's Maine Forest Service.

"The Forest Stewardship Assistance Program is designed to help improve wildlife, recreation, water quality and timber on Maine's small woodland owner-ships. The program provides financial and technical assistance to people who own small parcels of forest land, so they may create a productive, multi-use forest for themselves and for future generations," Cashwell said.

Under the program, nonindustrial landowners with 10 to 999 acres of forest land are eligible to receive up to $400 towards the cost of a forest stewardship plan prepared by a registered professional forester.

Cashwell emphasized the importance of the Forest Stewardship Program to 20,000 landowners currently enrolled under Maine's tree growth tax law. Recent changes in the law require a forest management and harvest plan for all lands enrolled under the tree growth law. The cost of preparing the plan may also qualify the landowner for a state income tax credit of up to $200. Approximately eight million acres, or 53 percent of Maine forest land, is in private, nonindustrial holdings. "Maine's timber supply demands and the need for recreation, wildlife and clean water can only be met by responsible management of all forest lands including small owner-ships," Cashwell said. For more information about the Forest Stewardship Assistance Program call the Maine Forest Service Information Center in Augusta at 1-800-367-0223.

Local police officers graduate from academy

Bethel Police Officer Darren M. Tripp and Oxford County Deputy Sheriff Warren J. Ellsworth were two of 36 new police officers to join the ranks of Maine's law enforcement community following their graduation, last week, from the Maine Criminal Justice Academy.

The graduation followed an intensive 12 weeks of study and training at the Waterville campus.

Maine Attorney General James Tierney told the graduates that one of his most gratifying experiences in the 10 years he has served as attorney general, has been working with the men and women in Maine law enforcement. "You graduates begin your careers by joining a dedicated group of professionals and I'm confident that your training at the academy has prepared you for the challenges ahead," Tierney said.

Among the topics studied during the 490-hour curriculum were domestic violence, criminal and traffic law, first-aid, firearms instruction and pursuit driving.

Because of a backlog of new officers needing training, another group of police officers will graduate Dec. 7. These 30 officers, all from southern Maine, trained separately at the State Armory in South Portland during the past several weeks, and their graduation will also take place there.

Woodstock School

A message from the principal.

I would like to thank all of the parents who visited the school during the parent conferences. It is great to see the support from home for the students of Woodstock. This support makes the school a pleasant place to be.

Many thanks are extended to Frank Etti, Bryant Pond Postmaster, for his recent visit to our school. Mr. Etti discussed the new format for addressing envelopes and some new functions at the post office, which will make mail delivery a more mechanized operation. Thank you.

George Ouellette performed for grades 4, 5 and 6. His performance was a most educational experience. This is the first of our programs from the Walk-A-Thon.

Hope we have a warm weekend.

A week in the life of HILLARY HARRISON

Yes it's snowing. And it's here. I hope that we are all ready to ski. I got my new ski pants and winter jacket.

The first snow is always around Thanksgiving but the sight of white, flaky snow reminds me of Christmas. I love Christmas, it is my favorite holiday. The peace and caring everyone shares. I love to get presents for people just as much as I like to receive. But now we all have Thanksgiving to look forward to. So I'll just wait for the holidays.

Newry

By GIL SESELEY

Karen Green of Cranston, R.I., and Raymond Beauchaine of Coventry, R.I., stopped for a short visit at Gil Seesley's one day last week on their way to Manchester, N.H., to visit some friends there.

The Newry Mother's Club met Nov. 12 at the town building with 12 members present. President Debbie Taylor opened the meeting and Gil Seesley said a prayer about the Gulf situation, hoping the leaders of all nations will use wisdom in preventing a total war within one year. Reports on the last meeting were read. June Swan, treasurer, reported on the finances. Olive told of the cards sent to the shut-ins, etc. Cindy Moxcey, who had charge of the cookbooks, reported on the brick sales going on. The Christmas tree lighting will be Dec. 2 at the town building with a potluck supper around 5:30 and the ceremonies following. Coffee and punch will also be served. The next meeting will be a Christmas party at Peggy Wight's Sunday River Inn, Dec.

3, at 6:30 p.m. with exchange of gifts and a potluck supper. Baskets for the shut-ins committee, Olive Anderson, Sylvia Wight and Gil Seesley will meet Dec. 19 at 10 a.m. at Sylvia's. Meeting was adjourned and snacks were served by Nancy Wight, Debbi Taylor and Eleanor Davis, followed by an auction conducted by Betsy Clark. The January meeting snack committee, Jan. 14, will be Peggy Wight, Cindy Moxcey and Gil Seesley.

The Newry ladies who bowl "for fun" at the Oxford Lanes, Rumford, were Karlene Bachelier, Betsy Clark, Gil Seesley, Eleanor Davis, Bea Lowell and Olive Anderson. Rena Powers was a guest. Betsy was high on singles with one string of 121 and another of 101, she also was high on the triples with a 316 score. She gets the Monster (again). Owen and Sue Wight dropped in at my house one day last week to bring me some nice vegetables from their garden. They believe in the old practice of "gleaning" as in the Book of Ruth.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

Just before the hunting season I went to the woods to see some evergreens. I put with my red berries. I love the tangle of moss and of branches that lace until the woodland looks like a mysterious maze.

Out by the ledges the pond was as smooth as glass. The air was fragrant with balsam. I stood and looked. A birch had grown and stood alone, silently dignified but forlorn, as if waiting for a step or a voice or even a breeze to come by.

HANGING ON TO THAT HARD HAT—Leroy Learned of Newry was honored last week on the occasion of his retirement from the Maine Department of Transportation. Learned, here with his wife, Bonnie, was presented with a hard hat by his crew, and a certificate of appreciation by the MDOT.

No season is without color and life, wonder and surprise. Everything has a season and if you would know the world of which you are a part you must know the way a snow drift is shaped in January as well as the ecstasy with which a thrush greets a September dawn or a robin greets a June moon.

I found the leaf mold in the making, which provides the blanket for lesser woodland plants. I gathered some of the things for which I came. There were tiny cones, acorn-cups, and the evergreen.

I took a look at earth's greatest travelers, the clouds, constantly being renewed. Then I started toward home.

I thought as I arranged my collection that perhaps my next trip will be on snowshoes, for I do not travel the woods during the hunting season.

By mid-afternoon the sun sank as red as fire. I enjoyed it from my kitchen window looking west across the pond. As I stood staring and questioning the sky, I saw a flock of birds advancing southward.

At my feeder a chickadee, cheerful and captivating, piped his tiny voice gay and polite, chick-chickadee-dee.

This scrap of valor is drawn by a bit of sunset in the winter. How he gladdens a dreary day, and brightens everything.

This little verse I have taken from a tiny book which my dad gave to me when I was a child. It is dated Oct. 3, 1880.

"Let us be off," the birdies said, Summer is over, and rough winds blow; The leaves of the forest are sere and dead, And soon will follow the ice and snow.

As I write this the first snow flakes are beginning to fall.

Fay Holt's visit to her eye doctor in Boston gave her a good report.

Albert Curtis' new trailer home has been moved onto his lot on Hayes Hill. Katherine Hakala was in New Hampshire over last weekend to see her new grandson born Nov. 1 to her daughter, Judith Matherson, and husband.

Zilpha DiArenzo was in to see me one afternoon this week, also called on Fay Holt.

This has been a busy week and a windy one. For three days we wondered if we'd be blown away, buried in snow or frozen to death. But we survived for this lovely day (Thursday) warm and sunny.

On Tuesday our club met with me and we had fun.

Several hunters are in their camp on Mud Pond this week.

A niece told me that at 5 one morning, as she was on her way to her mother's for a day of hunting, she saw a beautiful deer standing at the end of my lawn. It was just a bit early to do any shooting. I'm sure I would have been as startled as the night my door bell rang at 12:30 a.m. Thank you, niece, for obeying the law.

David and family and Ann were home on Sunday to visit with their parents, Leonas and Fay Holt.

John and Dot Betts have had several visitors.

Happy Thanksgiving.

By VIVA WHITMAN

The sun is shining good now but flurries of snow keep coming at times. Just to let us know what that white stuff looks like. A sitting on the ground and probably just enough to make it slippery in places so hope everyone takes care when driving. It is cold and down to 25 here this morning and I am sure lower in other places. Makes one know what is coming and don't like it too much.

I have started with my colds for the winter and they get me down at times. Cough my head off and take antibiotics too much and still keep coughing. Makes it hard to know what to do. If I was only wealthy, I'd go to Florida for the winter but could get sick there also, so don't know whether it is better or not.

Monday night was the night for us to do our thing at Grange and I think we did a good job considering we hadn't worked degrees for so many years. Oh, we could make mistakes, but we are human after all and didn't make enough mistakes to matter so everyone was pleased. A little prompting had to be done but we got through it well with 12 candidates taking the first and second degrees. On Nov. 19 the ladies degree team of West Paris worked the third and fourth degrees on the candidates. It sure seems good to have more folks coming into the Grange and we do have some good times.

Tuesday was Peggy's day to do stores and in the evening we went to Norway to Pomona Grange. What a good evening that turned out to be. Lots of jokes and stories told that were very funny so we had many a laugh and enjoyed it immensely.

Wednesday was the day for Russell and I to go to the doctors for back treatments in North Bridgton.

Thursday was the day for me to go see the doctor in Auburn about the pain in my side that has gotten better, thank the Lord, so Peggy and I decided to go shopping before hand and went in the morning to the new mall in Auburn. What a place that will be when all the buildings are occupied. It's almost like a whole town by itself. Lovely buildings and when all completed will be magnificent.

My appointment was at 2:30 in the afternoon so we did our shopping and had lunch. We called at LaVerdiere in Auburn to leave a package with my son-in-law and then to the doctors office. He said he found things much better than when he had seen me the last time so that's good.

Stopped on the way home for a book. Peggy was looking for and she finally had to go to the bookstore to get the one she wanted.

Friday afternoon we had an appointment to go to Community Concepts so got groceries and did errands at the same trip. Can't waste gas with it the price it is now so try to take advantage of every trip to get things needed, and not have to make special trips.

What a day Saturday turned out to be with the storm and wind. Peggy and Russell had planned to go to the dance at West Sumner but decided the weather didn't encourage them enough to go so stayed home. I started a puzzle of 1,500 pieces and Russell helped put the pieces out so we could see them and I could find the side pieces better.

Sunday was spent mostly on working on the puzzle as I didn't feel like doing much else. Got nearly half of it done by Russell helping me but this puzzle is one of the those where one piece might fit in two or three places and you have to decide which place it goes. Takes longer and as it is not interlocking, it is more difficult also. However, given time we will get it together.

Of course I have done other things this week such as finish a picture I was doing in cross stitch, finished a crocheted piece and started knitting a pair of mittens as well as fixing some undershirts for Russell. Getting meals takes time so keep busy and out of mischief very well.

I expect the children are enjoying a holiday today with school not in session. Some of them will find lots to do outside and others inside.

Don't forget the regular dance at West Paris Grange the first Saturday of December and also on Dec. 8, which is the second Saturday, there will be a dance to benefit Kids for Christmas in the area. A very worthwhile cause, so plan to come for a good time and to help out at the same time.

The holidays are upon us and so is the cold, it seems, so take care everyone and keep warm and healthy.

Dear Great Mother Earth:
As I stand at this granite podium to receive your Life-Can-Be-Beautiful Award, I look over the vastness of your valleys and the magnificence of your mountains and I'm reminded of so many who have touched my life and made "all this" possible.

First, I'd like to thank you my mother (sitting in the audience tonight) and father (watching from your side of the mountain) for allowing my entry into your kingdom—and for teaching me to appreciate the value of the struggle for enlightenment as I work on continuous growth and understanding.

I'd like to thank my sisters and my brothers for the bond that keeps me safe in the knowledge that some few will always love me, regardless of what I think or say or do. I'd also like to remind everyone listening that sib-

THEY WERE ROLLING ON THE FLOOR, or at least one young dancer was, at the Country Sunday Dance held last weekend to raise money for Greenwood's upcoming 175 birthday celebration. The dance, held at the Locke Mills Legion Hall, raised $400 for the birthday events. The bands performing Sunday included F Troop (shown above), North Country and Country Pride.

ings are the closest you come, oh wise and wonderful Mother, to making clones of ourselves, and because of that, they understand when no one else can.

I want to send a special thanks to my sons, who couldn't be here tonight. Each of them is embarking on a new adventure that takes him away from "home" and "security" as he "seeks his fortune." They are engaged in enterprises that will keep them apart from us for a while, but I know that they are with us in spirit tonight.

It's a pleasure to thank the new friends in our adopted valley who make us feel welcome as they share with us their love and their land. It's so heartwarming to be among people who are at once gentle and generous.

Some of those gentle souls were off to a Senior Citizen luncheon last week at the Goldstreet Restaurant in South Paris. Clara and Ruby Rolfe (happy birthday, Ruby), Frances Bennett (Main Street), Grace Merrill (accompanying the Bakers of the other side of the river) and Helen Saunders enjoyed dinner with their downtown friends and the music of Elden Hathaway's band. They serenaded the November birthday people, arranged to have their Christmas party at the Bethel Inn and voted to put Helen in the president's chair in January when Muriel Faudi hands over the gavel.

Helen, Frances, Clara and Helen's sister Dot then went to Telstar on Sunday to take in the turkey dinner prepared by the Honor Society members for the lucky senior "cize." I'd like to thank the Honor Society for their recognition of their elders, and their elders for showing me that there is life after menopause. In witness thereof, I'd like to congratulate the members of the Pleasant Valley Grange, who devoted a day last week to the preparation of a New England boiled dinner that "knocked the socks off" the brave souls who came to eat it (the brave souls who came to eat it, I'd like to thank my high school English teacher and mentor, Richard Hood (he, too, resideth somewhere on your side of the mountain), whose devotion to his appointed task makes it possible for me to construct (even 35 years later) such convoluted, but essentially correct sentences.

In remembering those who have influenced me, I cannot forget the friends who have shared the last three decades with us, not to mention the last 10 Thanksgiving dinners. They too are unable to attend this feast, a change in life course requires that they stay close to their own fire this year—and we're expecting skiers, so we must do turkey on our own turf. To Joan and Paul, I want to say: "Thanks for the lessons, the laughter, and the love. We'll dine at separate tables, but we will not be separated in spirit. We've enjoyed a visit this week with your Meg (our godchild) and we send her into your arms from our arm. Hugs for all others will be arriving telepathically; listen for the vibes."

Finally, as I contemplate the cornucopia (I know—I've used that phrase in other Thanksgiving missives, but I love it, and besides, I know that "Hoodie," wherever he is, will applaud the alliteration)—well, anyway, as I ponder my "plenty," I would like to offer my eternal gratitude to my husband, my lover, and my very best friend, all of whom happen to be embodied in the person who shares my heart and my heart—(sort of my own personal "blessed trinity"). Together we work and play, traverse the woods, shout for joy from the mountaintops, visit the villagers, feed the visitors, and ski the fields. He makes me laugh, dries my tears, applauds my accomplishments. After all these years, he tells me that he doesn't just love me—he likes me. With all that, plus a glass of fresh squeezed orange juice—what more could a person want?

So, dear Mother of the Universe, I accept this award on behalf of all my family and friends, here and there, and I hope that we can continue to appreciate your gifts as we develop our own. We will roast our turkeys, toast our health, and boast our great discovery, that the secret of life can be only one of two things: either to love and be loved—or—

Remember me to dad, and Claire, and my friend, Mary, and all those who left us to rest in your peace. Thanks again for honoring me with life; I will cherish it for as long as I breathe it.

Love, C.B.

Claude LaVallee is among the happy hunters as he downed a large buck. One family in town was able to purchase a large lot from an environmentalist group a few years ago. Prior to the sale, people were not allowed to set foot on the land nor disturb a leaf. Now a nice home has been built and the family cares for pets, feeds so many birds that it is a bird haven, cares about and enjoys all other wildlife, including bats if they reside in their own specially built bat house. This is natural and harmonious and far better than reserving land for animals and birds to the exclusion of homo sapiens.

We received several days of winter at its severest, certainly for November, but the snow has begun to melt and pack.

Roads are unsanded so that the UPS truck and others were unable to get on to Backstreet. Mother Nature will open some gravel spots so that two wheel drive or truck type vehicles can get purchase.

My favorite weekday radio station was off the air for two days which gave me the sensation of a weekend during the midweek.

The last weeks "Citizen" had lots of good stuff for me. The listings of Telstar's sports winners included names of three of my grandchildren and pictures of two of them. Congratulations to Ryan, Danville and Alanson from Marnie. Cousins Fannie and Alanson smiled at me from the article about them and to complete the personal value of the paper the article and letter from Mr. Favreau who is working for a proper environmental balance.

What to Do About Hemorrhoids

According to a recent report in Medical Times, hemorrhoids affect more than half of all adults and can occur in children as well. Hemorrhoids are enlarged and over-stretched blood vessels and surrounding tissues in the rectal area. These masses, which result from increased pressure in the blood vessels of the lower digestive tract, may occur inside (internal hemorrhoids) or outside of the body (external hemorrhoids). Signs and symptoms of hemorrhoids may include rectal bleeding, pain, itching, swelling, and inflammation.

• Warm sitz baths (sitting in warm water) may help ease hemorrhoid discomfort.

• A high-fiber diet of fruit and vegetables may make stools easier to pass, preventing the need for abdominal straining caused by constipation.

• Stool softener medicines also may help prevent straining.

• Topical medicines such as creams and ointments, containing steroids, local anesthetics, protease, and other ingredients, may help ease pain, itching, and burning.

• Professional care may involve cryosurgery (destruction of tissue through freezing) or injections of sclerosants that harden and dissolve hemorrhoids.

SCHOOL NEWS

Continued from page 4 and glue. They are starting dictation this week. The teacher dictates a letter of the alphabet and the children write them at the board or on slates at their desks.

The first-graders are studying Thanksgiving. They are learning about the celebration and the symbols that accompany this time of year: cornucopia, feast, turkey, etc. They are discussing how we celebrate and comparing it to the first Thanksgiving. Books to share at this time are "Bobby Bear's Thanksgiving," "Little Bear's Thanksgiving," "Cranberry Thanksgiving" and "Story of the First Thanksgiving." The children are making pattern necklaces with colored pasta to represent wampum beads. In math they are beginning to work on number concepts through manipulatives such as, pattern blocks, color tiles, toothpicks and unifix cubes. Their number games have interesting titles: "Crazy Mixed Up Numbers," "Piggy Bank," "Lift the Bowl," and "Spill the Beans."

In second grade, last week's special student, Justin Jones, entertained two guests. His grandmother came in just to visit, and his uncle came in and spoke to the class about his job in the community. Mr. Collette works with propane gas and told the children about the uses of, distribution and maintenance of propane gas. This week's special student is Tami Rosenberg. The remainder of the storybook house book reports are due this week.

The third-graders are continuing with their theme of Tipis, Totems and Tom-lot of attention. Many have been taking pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Grant's home that was burned is now all built up again and they expect to move into it in December.

Mrs. Mertice Barker is gaining slowly. Her daughter Andrea is helping her with her work.

tons. They are reading about what it was like to grow up as an early Indian. They are making Indian villages. They are writing an autobiography of themselves as if they were an Indian of long ago. They are also working on creating one huge tipi, or teepee, for their classroom.

The fourth-graders are finishing up their Maine studies unit, and will begin studying the regions of the United States.

In science they are investigating conductors and insulators. They are doing experiments to determine what objects are conductors and what are insulators.

My fifth-graders are having a busy week. We are beginning our annual Christmas letters to bring cheer to men and women in the service who don't get home for the holidays. Our science unit on the Paths of Light was wrapped up with a final test, and a periscope making activity. We have received our answers from our fifth-grade penpals from Norway and we will be writing to them soon. We keep up with current events with our Weekly Readers, and this week "The Great American Smokeout" was featured. We hope the day of no smoking will help some people to quit for good.

The sixth-graders are writing part II of their adventure stories. Some will also be writing and sending season's greetings to one of the men in the service who has kept in touch since last year's Christmas project. In math they are studying and reviewing decimals. They are working with money, estimating totals and differences. They are making correct change. They are also working independently in their math folders in the Oxford Hills Math Program. In math they are doing projects and reports on famous astronomers.

The first quarter has ended. Conferences are set for Monday, Nov. 26. Students, teachers and parents are buckling down for the new quarter.

Crescent Park School to form Student Council.

Students at the Crescent Park School will soon have the opportunity to see democracy in action from a first hand point of view.

Nomination forms for Student Council will be made available from Principal David M. Murphy during the next two weeks. Students will be required to gather 10 signatures to gain nomination to become representative of their class. Once the nominees have been determined, a general election will be held at the school to elect the various representatives.

This Student Council will meet regularly to discuss school issues. Eight council members will work cooperatively with the principal on a variety of school related topics.

The Student Council will be chartered with the American Student Council Association, a new national service founded by the National Association of Elementary School Principals.

Grant Acceptance. "Expanding Horizons," a geography and telecommunications grant written by Bread Loaf in the Schools coordinator Marguerite Graham and Crescent Park School third-grade teacher Elizabeth O'Meara, has just received acceptance and funding by the National Association of Elementary School Principals.

Encouraged by CPS Principal David Murphy, Graham and O'Meara designed this project for the purpose of expanding the rural perspective for students in grades one through five "beyond the traditional social studies textbook to a broader understanding of people and communities around the world."

The project will involve a core of district teachers who will help their students formulate questions. Using BreadNet telecommunications, students will enter their questions about geography, community and culture onto an international computer bulletin board to be voluntarily responded to by school children around the nation and the world.

Income information will form the basis of a variety of projects culminating with an evening celebration at the end of the year to share information, experiences, and results with parents, students, and community members.

Crescent Park receives L.A. Arts Grant.

David W. Murphy, principal of the Crescent Park Elementary School has received a $200 grant from the L.A. Arts Council. The grant will be used to provide the school with hallway wall murals, which will be designed by local artist Jewel Clark with assistance from students and local community members.

This grant, written by Murphy, will continue this year's efforts to highlight the school with various improvements to the CPS facility. Other changes already in place this year include the addition of many plants, new hallway art designs, an aquarium and the CPS "Fantasy Tree," which is used to distribute birthday cards to CPS students.

From the desk of Wendy T. Ford.

Dear parents:

"Thanksgiving"—certainly we enjoy the celebration: having friends over, eating a special meal, taking some time off from work and school, perhaps taking a trip to visit friends and relatives. Today, more than ever, we have so much to be giving thanks about:

• We are living in a free democracy—not surrounded by political unrest and terrorism.

• We send our children to play with their friends—not to defend a barricade with a gun.

• We have homes with walls and roofs—not cardboard boxes in an alley.

• We have meals to feed our children—not lines to stand in waiting for our ration of bread and water.

• We have a school where children come to learn, and teachers can come and teach.

Thanksgiving should happen every day.

From Principal Murphy:

Dear parents:

The challenge is upon us. Our Million Minutes of Reading is our goal. Last week we launched into this major event by having nearly 60 people from the community visit CPS and read to the children. It was a magical day as children sat mesmerized by stories and poems of a tremendous variety. Each reader added their own unique and splendid variation to the day.

Parents and other family members are all invited to join us in our pursuit of the Million Minutes. Pleasure reading at home or in school may be counted. A student reading to another child or a parent reading to another may count their time as double. Students listening to stories may also count their time.

The purpose of this challenge is to promote reading in the home. Your cooperation in this venture would be greatly appreciated.

Charts are available in the office for any family in need of additional ones for other family members.

If you have any questions regarding the challenge, please don't hesitate to give me a call.

1,000,000 Minutes of Reading!

That's the challenge for Crescent Park School pupils, as well as for their friends and families—many of whom turned out last Wednesday to help kick-off the big event.

Crescent Park teachers and Principal David Murphy hope that the good work started by volunteers like these shown here will be continued in the homes of children across the community.

And that reading will become a lifetime habit for each and every one of Wednesday's eager listeners.

THE OX-CART POET—Donald Hall, award winning poet and author of the popular "The Ox-Cart Man," was one of the readers at Crescent Park School last week. Hall's visit to Bethel was sponsored by the Mahosuc Arts Council. CPS third-graders, who use "The Ox-Cart Man" in their social studies curriculum, each received a copy of the book. Hall also gave a reading of his poems at Gould Academy and discussed writing with students there.

ROTARY COUNTRY BREAKFAST— The steam lines were busy Sunday, as the Bethel Rotary Club held its annual Country Breakfast at Gould Academy. Nancy Harrison and Brian Stowell, right, take their shift dishing out the eggs, sausage, pancakes, muffins and home fries for Dave Denison, while behind the scenes Cathy Morgan shows Jim Sysko and Ray Harrington how to keep the clean dishes coming.

Telstar/Boston Exchange

A group of 72 students from Telstar Regional High School will host about 20 Boston high school students for the weekend of Nov. 30-Dec. 2.

This will be the second such exchange between Telstar and Boston, a similar one took place last year. To organize this big project the group has divided itself into four different committees: the Fund-raising Committee, with chairpeople Kelly Hayes and Dawn Davis; the Liaison Committee with chairpeople Heidi Hinkley and Rafael Gison; the Steering Committee, with chairpeople Jenn Felt and Jamie Lewis. The group has many activities planned, such as a day at school, attending a dance, visiting a farm, etc. The individuals working with the group to make the exchange a success are Tom and Melinda Remington, Tim Kavanagh, Barbara Russell and Dan Hart.

Cross Country Quilters begin new season

Those present were Barbara Honkala, Sue Crane, Alice McInnis, Carole Crandall, Ruth Peeney, Mary Keniston, Virginia Keniston, Virginia Hutchins and Mabel Keniston.

First item of business was to elect new officers and they are: chairman, Virginia Keniston; co-chairman, Mildred Jackson; and secretary and treasurer, Mary Keniston.

Members were very enthusiastic and suggested many plans for the year. Regular meetings will be held the first and third Tuesday each month (except for January, then the second and fourth Tuesday), at the library from 9-11 a.m., unless otherwise announced. The first meeting each month will involve any business decisions.

'Portrait of Paris Hill' published

Madison Avenue, where? That's right—Oxford County. It's a short block with a dead end within hollering distance of the twin towns of South Paris and Norway.

It's also the place where Martin Dibner spent the last five years putting together his recent book, "Portrait of Paris Hill," published on Picasso's birthday, Oct. 25.

Not that the book has anything to do with Picasso, whom Dibner met and has admired since his early art school days. "It's just a good omen," he smiles. "... a happy day to launch a happy book."

As for the other Madison Avenue, Dibner knows it well. His nine novels and the classic "Seacoast Maine, People and Places" were published from the offices of Speedway Inc., where, thanks to Gary Bahre, he was given ample space and privacy to work. Directly across the avenue, Western Maine Graphics printed sections of the book as Dibner completed them, then returned galley proofs for his final revisions. "No writer could ask for more," he says fervently.

"Portrait of Paris Hill" is an authentic chronicle of a landmark Maine village spanning two centuries, ranging from pioneer times of Indian fighting and raw hardship to the quite different problems of environment and survival today.

Once the thriving center of political, commercial and cultural eminence, Paris Hill declined with the by-passing of a railroad facility (the Hill was too high). Its vigorous spirit faded completely when South Paris took over as seat of Oxford County's government in responsible for the blue floss for tieing. All Cross Country Quilters are asked to come and participate and anyone interested in joining or learning to tie a quilt.

The meeting dates for next month will be Dec. 4 and 18. Dec. 18 will be a Christmas party with coffee and deserts. Members attending will bring a quilted Christmas Fun Square called "Snowball and 9-Patch Square." The pattern can be found in the Country Road Quilters of Western Maine Newsletter #16, September 1990 issue, that all members should have

But it was a blessing in disguise. Freed of political obligations and commercial pressure, Paris Hill came into its own—a stronghold of grace and serenity fashioned by the skilled hand of Man in harmony with Nature's earthy gifts.

Among its distinguished residents were four Governors of Maine, several high state and federal officials, 12 Congressmen and senators, and Abraham Lincoln's wartime vice president, Hannibal Hamlin (1806-1891). The Paris Hill District was entered on the National Register of Historic Places June 16, 1973.

Implicit in this account of a unique Maine landmark is the author's affection for the region where he has chosen to live for more than 40 years. His deepest concern is for the future of the steadfast pioneer villages he knows so well. Given vigilance and care, he writes, they will endure, "confirming the concept of village as Man's natural habitat—the key to his ultimate survival."

received. The fun part of the meeting will be that someone present will have her name drawn to receive all the Christmas patches contributed. Anyone needing information on the pattern may call any of the above officers or a club member.

Carole Crandall volunteered to draft the month-by-month calendar, including the interesting/quitting projects, fun trips and social gatherings. These will be ready for our next meeting.

Gilead senior citizens say thanks

By LOUISE LORING

When the pilgrims, many years ago, celebrated their first Thanksgiving, they graciously invited the natives to put on by the Honor Society. Kim from the Home For Creative Living gave an informative talk on their program. Lindsey Weiden spoke about some may be entitled to reduced phone bills, and about a new museum in Bangor to open in May. He also read a couple of humorous stories.

The annual Christmas party will be Tuesday, Dec. 11, with an exchange of gifts at the Bethel Inn at 5:30 p.m. Seated at the birthday table were Ethel Ward, Richard and Hulda Stevens, Ann Crockett, Betty Robertson, Mansfield Packard, Tony and Eleanor Pugliese.

Clara Rolfe of the nominating committee reported the new officers for the coming year are: president, Helen Saunders; vice president, Harold Powell; secretary, Barbara H. Brown; treasurer, Sarah Stevens; Sunshine, Muriel Faudi; finance, Bud Paine; program, Lindsey Weiden; fund-raising, JoAnn and Rudy Royer. A delicious chicken dinner was served. A musical program was enjoyed by all.

share in their bountiful harvest. So it was in Gilead at the Trolley Stop Diner, when Joe Bagnell, proprietor of the same, and Mr. and Mrs. Forest Young, proprietors of the Evans Natch Motel, invited the senior citizens of this community to their Thanksgiving feast.

Edward Rice met the guests at the door and escorted them to the dining room.

There they found the long table tastefully decorated with the Thanksgiving motif, and fresh flowers were attractively arranged as centerpiece. Soft organ music enhanced the feeling of relaxation.

Peggy Rice and Vivian Chase served as the capable waitresses, and George Whalen, friend of Mr. Bagnell, was the culinary consultant.

In this writers opinion, and I am sure in the minds of all of us that were in attendance, this was the nicest event to happen in Gilead in a long time, and will be a memory we will all happily treasure.

So it is with deep appreciation that we, the senior citizens of Gilead, take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you who so generously donated and contributed to this event in any way.

May God bless all of you.

BETHEL U.M.W. MEET

The Bethel United Methodist Women met Nov. 1 with 11 members present. Plans were made for the fall fair Nov. 9 and 10.

Birthday's for November are Hulda Stevens, Betty Robertson, Ethel Ward, Virginia Keniston and Katie Kennagh. A get well card was signed for Rev. Millett Cummings, who fell and is now recuperating from a fractured hip.

The Oct. 24 luncheon for area church ladies was well attended and Jim Stoner's musical entertainment was enjoyed by all.

Hostesses Lisa Vonderheide and Betty Perkins served a delicious lunch with Thanksgiving decor.

Next meeting will be a Christmas party on Friday, Dec. 7, at noon with a potluck dinner served by the officers. Exchange of gifts and secret pals were revealed.

Maine sawmills subject of state museum book

The Maine State Museum has announced the publication of "Maine Sawmills."

Written by the museum's director, Paul Rivard, the book presents the history of an industry immensely important regionally, nationally and internationally.

From boards to shingles to barrel staves and laths Maine supplied the world with essential building materials.

Statistics for the mid-19th century period offer vivid evidence of the state's productivity. By 1840, 200

NEWRY TREE LIGHTING

The annual tree lighting ceremony has been expanded this year to include the recreation committee having a cookie decorating contest to begin at 3:30 on Dec. 2 at the Newry Town Office; and there will be a potluck supper beginning at 5 p.m. followed by the tree lighting ceremony, carol singing, and a visit from Santa Claus, who will be handing out goodies.

be left at Sanborn Machine Co. Inc. in South Waterford before Dec. 3, for the first shipment.

million feet of lumber was being cut annually. In the early 1850s nearly 100 million pine and cedar shingles were made each year. In 1854 over 2 million clapboards were sawn in the mills of Orono alone.

"Maine Sawmills" traces the development of mill activities from the arrival of the first European settlers in the early 17th century to the beginning of the 20th century. Sixty-seven illustrations drawn from the museum's and other archives graphically document virtually every aspect of the harvesting and processing of wood.

The book also explains changes in technology and discusses the business aspects of mill operation. The effects of Maine sawmills on society and their relationship to other industries is examined.

"Maine Sawmills" is dedicated to the sawyers of Maine and people, from mill owners to operators, play a key role in the narrative.

"Maine Sawmills" is published as part of a large research project by the Maine State Museum concerning the state's industrial and manufacturing history.

The book is available by contacting the Sales Shop, Maine State Museum, State House Station 83, Augusta, Me., 04333, 207-289-2301. The price is $4.50 plus $1 for shipping. Maine residents please add five percent sales tax.

Jackson-Silver Post #68

Members of the Jackson-Silver Post, along with members of the Auxiliary, observed Veteran's Day observances inside the Legion Hall due to the cold, wintery weather. Regrettably, there was a very small gathering of members and friends.

The main program consisted of four separate speakers who had participated in the armed conflicts of this century. Representing World War I was our oldest member and charter member of the Post, Comrade Alanson Cummings, highlighting the experiences of a Maine farm boy becoming a soldier.

Post member Roland Lord, who was a combat veteran in the Battle of Europe, spoke of his experiences in the Korean Conflict, but just as a guest.

One of the more well known members, former Post Commander Charles Mason, spoke of his experiences in the Korean Conflict, but just as a guest.

A guest Legionnaire, Comrade Tom Warner of the Rumford Post, represented those who fought in Vietnam.

Members of the Post Firing Squad concluded the services of the day by firing a volley of shots outside the hall in respect to those who gave their lives in all wars for their country.

We were very pleased to have members of the Telstar Band with us who played several numbers.

Members of the Boy Scout Troop of Bethel with their leaders were with us also, and are to be complimented for their excellent behavior and attention, standing during all the lengthy proceedings. This shows good training.

We would like to give thanks to the members of the Post Auxiliary for their faithfulness in helping in so many ways and furnishing refreshments to members of the band and Boy Scouts, as well as others present.

To all who are interested there will be another auction at the Legion Hall on Dec. 9. Doors will be open at 1:30 p.m.

Rotary Club notes

The Bethel Rotary Club was fortunate to have two speakers at our Tuesday, Nov. 13, breakfast meeting.

Melinda Remington was program chairperson and invited Jane Melver from Greenville High School to address the group. Jane oversees an innovative hospitality training program at that high school, which gives students real "hands-on" experiences in preparation for careers in the hospitality industry, which is growing in Maine. A slide presentation and Jane's comments were most informative.

Our other speaker was District Governor Elect Robert Pattern, who spoke on Rotary Foundation; its history, development and growth as it's significant impact in the world today.

Reminders were given on upcoming Rotary activities including the country breakfast, the citrus sale, the Rotary Social, the Christmas for Children campaign and the Senior Citizen dinner.

Guests included William Cozart, Sarah Craig, Wendy Macrolini, Thelma Domkowski and Jeff Melver.

Ted Davis gave Rotary information on the objects of Rotary.

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

Thanks to the following volunteers, the Bethel Area Chamber had and exhibition in the Ski Maine Area of the Boston Ski Show from Nov. 15-18. They were: Bill Riley, Bill Dutton, Bill Barker, Tom McGinnis and Don King. Thanks also to the Bethel Inn for donating the backdrop and the tables for the display.

The Bethel area retailers are planning to hold an open house weekend, Nov. 23-25. Most stores will be staying open until 9 p.m. both Friday and Saturday evenings and will offer hot drinks and goodies for all to enjoy. Sunday afternoon will also offer a variety of shopping choices, as many retailers will be keeping their doors open. Kick off your holiday shopping by patronizing these local business people. For a list of those participating call or drop in at the Chamber Office.

We are planning a holiday party for all Chamber members to be held at the Sub-bury Inn. The date will be announced in next week's paper.

Many thanks to the Budget Committee members, George Larson, Nancy Harison, Dillon Gillies, Rick Whitney and Bill Riley for their hard work and thoughtfulness in preparing the Chamber's 1991 budget.

Scouting News

By DARREN WIGLEY

The meeting for Nov. 14 was a parent's night. We opened as usual with the Pledge of Allegiance, the Scout Oath and the Scout Law.

All donations for Scouting for Food were collected on Nov. 17 and donated to the Green Church in Rumford for distribution. A new savings plan was introduced. The plan will allow scouts to contribute money each week towards our Troop goal of sending everyone to Camp Bomaheen. This plan is set up in individual accounts so each Scout will have his own savings.

Another idea discussed was to have the Scouts hold a bake sale on Dec. 1. The proceeds would be used to assist the Bethel Area Rotary Club in providing Christmas toys to underprivileged children in our area.

We also had an awards ceremony. The Scouts who participated in the 50-mile hike and the summer campout were presented with their First-Aid and Mammals Merit Badges. Scouts who received the Animal Science Merit Badges were Ryan Bernier, Lloyd Sweetser, David Sweetser, Fa-

B.A.H.C. opens Physical Therapy Dept.

The Bethel Area Health Center is pleased to announce the opening of the Physical Therapy Department, with the appointment of Mary Rossi.

Mary has a B.S. in education from the University of Maine in Orono specializing in physical education. Her Masters degree in physical therapy is from Baylor University in Texas, where she was on active duty in the Army as a physical therapist for five years. Her professional background also includes a year presenting Back School and Cumulative Trauma Prevention classes to industries through IM-PACC in Bangor and working as a therapist in Oxford County for Androscoggin Home Health Services.

Mary is currently on the faculty of University of New England teaching kinesiology in addition to working as a physical therapist in the University Health Center.

Mary lives in Bryant Pond and enjoys working weekends with the Ski Patrol at Sunday River. She is also a Certified Aerobics Instructor and plans to contribute to the already successful aerobics classes at the Center.

Physical Therapy treats many kinds of injuries and conditions, such as back pain, sports injuries, and is successful in many types of rehabilitation programs. Mary will be taking referrals for services and treatments.

The plans for the future include prevention services for industry and sports, consultation for conditioning, fitness assessment and exercise prescription.

Mary also plans to present educational programs per request by area industries and businesses and in conjunction with SAD #44 Adult Education. Community Education programs are also available on a request basis by area residents.

The Bethel Area Health Center is delighted to have Mary on our staff. We feel that the addition of her skills and knowledge will bring services to the community that have not been available in the immediate area.

Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

On Nov. 15 we met for our latest meeting.

The membership application of Helen Cummings was accepted and we welcome her as our newest member. We are getting quite close to our Department membership quota.

We remind one and all that Sunday, Nov. 25, is the open house from 2-4 p.m., honoring Fannie and Alanson Cummings on their 70th wedding anniversary. Now residing in West Bethel, they lived for many years in West Paris and are well known throughout the area, so we are expecting many to come and share this special day with them.

It was voted to aid our area youths in two ways. Again this year we will donate the wrapping paper for the Rotary Club's "Christmas for Children" campaign. In February we will give the use of our meeting room as a "campsite" for the Boy Scouts for their ski weekend.

During the next three months, December, January and February, both the Post and Unit will meet only once a month, on the first Thursday of the month.

The next meeting will follow a potluck supper scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Dec. 6. This will be our Christmas party. We urge all members to attend and share in the fellowship. Each one should bring a dish to share and there will be singing as well as an exchange of gifts. Each one should bring an inexpensive gift, suitable for one's own sex.

Shipping food to troops serving in Saudi Arabia

Many people are now seeking guidelines for shipping foods to Saudi Arabia. Although brief, the following suggestions may be helpful.

Any forms of alcoholic beverage (including liqueur flavored candies, etc.), and pork products, are strictly prohibited due to religious reasons.

Canned vegetables are susceptible to spoilage because temperatures in storage and transportation containers may reach 150 degrees F. Foods processed in the United States are not canned to withstand such conditions. Although canned foods are safe and will not spoil, quality will deteriorate rapidly at high temperatures.

Dry and intermediate moisture foods survive best under these adverse conditions. Because of worm growth, only commercially dried fruit packaged in sulfur dioxide or other preservatives is recommended.

Certain types of cookies (individually wrapped) and cakes are good, but avoid chocolate frostings, those that become stale readily, or those that may break and crumble in transit. Candies should not be the type that melt and should be individually wrapped. Nuts that are vacuum packed and with antioxidants should survive.

Chewing gum is not acceptable. Individual packages of dry fruit drink mixes and granola bars (without chocolate) seem to fare well in shipping.

During the next three months, December, January and February, both the Post and Unit will meet only once a month, on the first Thursday of the month.

The next meeting will follow a potluck supper scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Dec. 6. This will be our Christmas party. We urge all members to attend and share in the fellowship. Each one should bring a dish to share and there will be singing as well as an exchange of gifts. Each one should bring an inexpensive gift, suitable for one's own sex.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

"The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life."

"Co-dependency" is a popular word nowadays. Psychologists and counselors often speak of people as being co-dependent, and the term has filtered in to the conversation of the rest of us, as well. But what does this word really mean? and is co-dependency always a bad thing?

Actually, this is a word that has two different meanings. In one sense, all of us are "co-dependent." Co-dependency is part of life. We are dependent on our biological parents for our very existence. We are dependent on farmers for the food we eat. We are dependent on government for schools, police protection, highways, and so forth. We are dependent on nature for sunlight, air, and water. Ultimately, we are all dependent upon God, the creator of all. We are involved in a network of mutual dependency, and this makes us all co-dependents.

It is healthy to recognize that we are co-dependent in this sense, and to live our lives in this knowledge. Healthy co-dependents take responsibility for life. They take a stand on political issues, get involved in community affairs, contribute to worthy causes, and support their church. They have an environmental consciousness. They are true to their commitments. This is what healthy co-dependency means.

But there is an unhealthy sense of the word "co-dependency." When a person is addicted to alcohol or another drug, or any form of harmful behavior, that person is said to be "dependent." This is, such a person has surrendered free will, freedom of choice, to that drug or harmful behavior, and now cannot resist it. He or she is "dependent" upon that substance or behavior, to the point that it controls his or her life.

Friends, relatives, and co-workers of the dependent person often get caught up in the addiction. They get pulled into covering up for the dependent person, making excuses, taking responsibility upon themselves. Thus, they become "co-dependents," in the sense that they are just as dependent on this harmful behavior as the dependent person is. Their lives are just as dominated, just as controlled, by the addictive behavior, as the addict is.

Jesus said, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." He did not say, "Thou shalt protect thy neighbor from the consequences of his own actions, even if it means ruining thine own life." God created us with the freedom to be healthy co-dependents, able to take responsibility for our own lives. God does not demand that we bear the burden of other people's folly, thus becoming unhealthy co-dependents.
